Fear Catchers

8 0 1

Chapter 1 by Enrique_the_gr8

Samuel walked into the cold laboratory. A doctor approached him, and sat him down on the operating bed. They were rushing around, grabbing things, he really didn't know what they were doing, he really didn't care. He had done this a thousand times. He was a fear catcher. His job was to go into people's subconscious and find what they were most afraid of. He would right a report about what he saw then send it to the boss. He didn't know what his boss did with that information but he didn't care about that either. As long as he got paid he was fine. The doctors put a mask over his face then he closed his eyes, he waited a few second while the doctors readied everything. Eventually he heard machines start and there he was. He was standing in a rocky plain. He climbed around for a bit before noticing a small collection of houses. He opened one door and went inside. He found nothing, he was about to leave when something caught his eye. Outside he saw a man, the man was wearing rags, but he was wielding a gun, it was strapped around his neck. Suddenly gunshots echoes through the village. People began to shout, gunshot, yelling, screaming. Smoke started floating into the room, Samuel was blinded, stumbling around he found the door. He stepped outside.
